SUICIDE AT WEST FRANKLIN.

Frank X. Doge Found Dead in His Barn on Sunday Morning.

Frank X. Dodge, a well known and much respected farmer living at West Franklin, suicided on Sunday morning by hanging. He was about 60 years of age, and is survived by his wife and one son, living in Luzerne county. Mr. Dodge had been in ill health for several months, but he had made no statements, nor had his actions given any indication of a determination to end his life.

He arose about 4 o'clock, and shortly afterward his wife missed him and went out, only to find his lifeless body hanging in the barn. He had stood upon the stairs in the barn, and fastening a rope about his neck had stepped off to the floor. When found his feet were resting upon the floor.

Unknown Man Killed.

His remains have been viewed by several, but all fail to recognize him. His mustache and hair are sandy.—Wayne Independent.

RAILWAY POSTAL CLERKS A BUSY LOT OF MEN.

Some Idea of What Is Expected of Them in Examination and Work.

A railway postal clerk is an employee of that part of Uncle Sam's expansive government known as the railway mail service. The first postal clerk in the United States was appointed under the administration of President Lincoln in 1864, and covered the run between Chicago, Ill., and Clinton, Iowa. There were then only two clerks in the service, while now they total more than 15,000, and every postoffice in the United States is being served by thousands. A person to enter the mail service must be over five feet, four inches tall, and has to pass a rigid examination, the equal of which would entitle him to a policy in any life or accident insurance company in the world. He is then required to pass a civil service examination, consisting of the following subjects: Mathematics, orthography, letter writing, geography of the United States and its possessions, railways and other means of transportation, penmanship, copying and reading addresses. He first receives an appointment as substitute and is placed on probation for a period of six months, when, if he is found capable, mentally and physically, he is given a regular or permanent appointment, perhaps one hundred or two hundred miles from his home.

A traveler on a tram thinks as he glides smoothly along, pashing station after station, where no stops are made, that the mail clerk must have a very soft snap. He does not realize that the clerk is standing there in his car, working mail received at the last stop, and serving the passing stations by a service known to but very few persons. Nearly everyone who is not acquainted with the service imagines as the mail is thrown into the car, that the clerk's work is ended until the next stop, when in fact he has been working continuously, the mail received and serving and receiving mail from the stations, as they are passing the train running at the rate of from 40 to 60 miles an hour. While the hours for a day's work in all other departments are eight, the railway postal clerk has to work anywhere from eight to 16 hours continuously. He occupies the most dangerous position on the train, being placed directly back of the engine, where in case of a wreck he is the one who is usually injured, and quite frequently killed. It is said that a postal clerk shut up in his car is far more helpless to protect himself from danger in case of a wreck than the soldier in actual battle. As long as he continues in the service he is required to pass yearly examinations on the cities and states which he works, and which require a considerable amount of study, having to make an average of 98 per cent. or over. It has been said that if a clerk would put as much time to the study of law as he does in the railway mail service he would make as proficient a lawyer as this state has ever known.

Towandians in the Service.

Towanda is represented in the railway postal service by three men—C. M. Myer, E. A. White and H. D. Morganroth. Messrs. Myer and White are two of a force of 20 clerks running between New York and Buffalo on the Lehigh Valley railroad, known as the New York and Buffalo Railroad Postoffice, and they are experts. They must not only know all the postoffices served along the route, but they must know New York city by postal routes and assort their mail accordingly. An idea of the magnitude and exacting quality of the work may be gathered from the fact that in January, 1906, an average month, 2,475,000 separate pieces of mail were handled by these 20 men on this run. Of this vast amount of matter 68,869 pieces were handled correctly to every error made.

The following is a report received from J. E. Haas, postal clerk on the Pennsylvania flyer between Wilkes-Barre and Pottsville for the fiscal year just ended: "1,593,600 letters handled, or one for every man, woman and child in the city of Philadelphia; 3,019,500 papers handled, or one for every family in Chicago, New York, Wilkes-Barre and Scranton; 15,275 registers of a valuable letter for every man, woman and child in Nanticoke and vicinity. In one year he travels 50,240 miles, or twice around the world, works 2,512 hours and serves and received mail from 15,024 offices, 4,382 of which are served while the train is in motion."

Soliciting Freight Agent.

W. L. Donaldson of Detroit, Mich., has been appointed soliciting freight agent under Bert Hayden the division freight agent at Sayre, and has commenced the duties of his office. E. H. Eason was formerly soliciting freight agent for many years but some time ago he was promoted to traveling claim agent. He was succeeded by R. K. Barton, who after a short service in that office, was promoted to division freight agent with headquarters at Newark, N. J. Mr. Donaldson now succeeds Mr. Barton.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Local Court Orders Judgment in Insurance Cases.

ECHO OF THE FRAZIER SUIT.

Court Decides That Verdict as Rendered Shall Stand and Costs Will Not Be Divided—Swingle Insurance Suits to Be Appealed—Justice Court

In the case of Alton T. Swingle vs. Sun Insurance Office and the Hanover Fire Insurance Co., two cases in which the jury gave Mr. Swingle a verdict of $1,306.04 each, the court has directed judgment to be entered on the verdict. The suits were brought to recover for the loss of a store and goods at Laddsburg. The defendants asked for judgment non obstante veredicto. The cases will probably be appealed.

N. S. Frazier vs. Elizabeth N. Frazier, replevin. Rule to show cause why an order shall not be made directing an equitable distribution of the costs discharged. The verdict in this case was for $150 for the defendant, which carried the costs, although the jury found at the same time that Mrs. Frazier left her home without sufficient cause. The suit was to recover property taken by her at that time.

Nearly the entire day Friday was taken up in the case of Commonwealth vs. Charles Yanofsky, charged with receiving stolen property. The prosecutor, Arthur H. Wiggins, testified that he missed a painter's hook on June 18 and notified the defendant that if he came across the said hook to notify him. Soon after Wiggins observed a hook on the scrap pile of the defendant. The defense sprung a surprise on the commonwealth, when they showed that the hook was not found on the property of Yanofsky, but on the property of some one else. After considerable argument as to the law and the facts, Justice Meredith discharged the defendant. David E. Kaufman, Esq., appeared for the defendant, and Stephen H. Smith, Esq., for the prosecutor.

A subpoena in divorce has been granted in the case of Anna L. Barnes vs. Burdette S. Barnes.

John H. Whitman vs. First National bank of Canton; rule to show cause why judgment shall not be set aside for want of sufficient affidavit of defense.

Freight Handlers Strike Settled.

The strike of the Sayre freight transfer platform is settled and the officials of the company say that this branch of the service is once more thoroughly organized and in good shape to care for all the freight that is to be transferred at Sayre. All but four or five of the men who went out on a strike have returned to work. Although no promises have been made to the men it is more than likely that they will receive an increase in pay before many weeks have passed.—Valley Record.

Seven County Veterans.

The Seven County Veterans' association will hold its annual reunion on Aug. 16, at Mountain Lake and several hundred people are expected to be present. The veterans will come from Lackawanna, Wyoming, Susquehanna, Wayne, Bradford and Luzerne counties, this state, and Broome county, New York. I. E. Finch is the president, while G. W. Hamersly of Wilkes-Barre, is the secretary. An interesting program has been aranged for the occasion.

"Opened by Mistake."

Hereafter the "opened by mistake" excuse will be a mistake that will cost $200. The postoffice department has ruled that mail must be looked over before leaving the office, and that any letter put in your box by mistake must be returned before leaving the postoffice under a penalty of $200 for failure to do so.—Ex.

On Saturday evening the Black Diamond express, West bound, struck and killed Frank Biesteder and the team he was driving at Port Blanchard, below Pittston. A string of cars hid the approaching train from the man and he drove upon the crossing.

Case of Sour Grapes.

Just because an Owego woman, aged 78 walked two miles in 26 minutes, there are people unkind enough to say "there must have been a bargain sale on." More likely she was getting out of Owego.—Waverly Free Press.

STATE GAME AFFAIRS.

Secretary Kalbfus Reports a Satisfactory Condition of Affairs.

The Pennsylvania State Game commission held its semi-annual meeting in Harrisburg, Thursday, for the purpose of hearing the report of Secretary Kalbfus and the transaction of routine business.

A most encouraging condition of affairs regarding the increase of game in the state was presented by Secretary Kalbfus. He strongly recommended that a law be passed making it a penal offense for any unnaturalized foreign born resident to own a gun or any other kind of firearms. In the last six months five officers of the game commission, in hunting down offenders against the game laws, have been shot at and wounded. One man was brutally murdered by Italians in the Western part of the state and his body thrown into the river, simply because he prosecuted foreign violators of the game laws.

The department brought from Alabama for propogating purposes 3,547 quail, and they are all said to be doing finely. Three sites for game preserves have been selected, one in Clinton county, a second in Clearfield and a third in Franklin, all on forestry land owned by the state.

It is impossible to get deer or wild turkeys for propogating purposes, but the commission is on the watch and ready to purchase when opportunity offers.

Dr. Kalbfus recommends that a law be passed requiring all resident hunters to take out a license. At present only unnaturalized foreigners are required to take out a hunting license.

During the half year there were collected about $1,800 in fines, of which $66 went to informers.

FIVE BOYS BLOWN UP.

Frightful Fourth of July Accident Near Wilkes-Barre.

The most horrible Fourth of July accident ever recorded in this section of the state, happened at Wannamie, a mining town near Wilkes-Barre. A party of boys from 10 to 16 years old, all of them foreigners, were "celebrating." They had a piece of iron pipe an inch in diameter and 18 inches long, into which they inserted a stick of dynamite. On top of this was poured powder and a match applied.

Twice this performance was repeated and no explosion resulted. Then one of the lads took the pipe in his hands and began pounding it upon a rock to dislodge the dynamite. There was a terific explosion and five of the boys were instantly killed, and three others injured, one of them so badly he will die. The mother of two of the injured lads saw the explosion. The bodies were horribly mutilated, hands and feet being blown away and the faces made almost unrecognizable.

College Season Ended.

The college base bal season came to an end for the season of 1906 with the Harvard-Yale game last week. The inter-college winner for the season was Princeton, being the only successful one of the "Big Six." Princeton, with the exception of Harvard, won decisive victories over all teams but Pennsylvania, with which team it broke even. Pennsylvania was defeated by Cornell and Harvard broke even with the rest. Cornell lost to Princeton while Harvard lost both games to Yale. Columbia was defeated by almost every other team.

May Settle Eighmey Case.

MR. STUART ACCEPTS.

Philadelphia's Former Mayor to Run For Governor.

SYNOPSIS OF HIS SPEECH

Formally Notified on Saturday of His Nomination, He Outlines His Position and Declares He Stands Squarely Upon the Platform Adopted.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 8.—On the piazza of his home at Oak Lane, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, former Mayor Edwin S. Stuart of this city, received from the hands of Congressman M. E. Olmstead, chairman of the recent state convention, the official notification of his nomination by the Republican party for governor, and in accepting the same, said:

"I have not sought this nomination; I have not at any time nor in any way attempted to influence the action of a single delegate to the convention you represent. I have not been approached with even a suggestion of a condition or pledge. Since I am summoned in this manner as a standard bearer of the Republican party, without solicitation on my part, and am free and unembarrassed by personal or political obligations, the path of duty is plain, I accept the nomination.

"I would decline it if its acceptance implied any obligation that would not leave me absolutely free and untrammeled in the exercise of my judgment for the best interests of the whole people.

"I approve without hesitation or reservation the party's declaration of principles, and I stand squarely upon the platform adopted by the convention. If I am elected, it shall be my aim to use what influence I may possess to give practical effect to its recommendations.

"Our transportation companies are common carriers, to which have been given special and valuable privileges, primarily for the public good and they are required by the law, by a sound public policy and by the common honesty that should govern the management of public trusts, to grant equal and exact privileges to all. They must be made to understand that the people of the commonwealth will not tolerate an unjust discrimination which gives to one and withholds from another, like conditions, which builds up the business of a favorite by crushing competition. This iniquity must stop and stop at once, and a policy of absolute fairness must be established and maintained.

"The Republican party is strong enough to deal with all questions affecting good government, and no man or set of men should be permitted to stand in the way.

"If there are any who expect the governor Pennsylvania to be the head of or part of a political faction to advance the interests of one and stand in the way of another, or to use his official power to promote individual or factional aims, they should not vote for me. I do not desire an election that has any other meaning than the triumph of the principles of good government, principles from which there could be expected anything but honest and impartial administration of the executive office in the interest of the whole people."

Relics of the Flood.

The Johnstown, Pa., flood, in which 2,142 people lost their lives and nearly $10,000,000 worth of property was destroyed, occurred May 31, 1889. Last week, laborers who were excavating for a building in the city unearthed 12 glass jars filled with preserved berries, and all in good condition. They were undoubtedly buried by the great flood. The following day laborers found an old pocketbook, which on examination was found to contain $3.66. There were three silver dollars and the balance in small change. The pocketbook and other relics of the big flood were in a fair state of preservation.

Some Election Expenses.

Three of the recent candidates for the legislature on the Republican ticket, Messrs. Hoyt, Moscrip and Tuton, have filed their statements of campaign expenses as required by the recent act of assembly. Mr. Hoyt disburseu $350.29, Mr. Moscrip $190.72, and it cost Mr. Tuton $157.11 to be a candidate.

B. Tetrick, of Reading; first vice-president, Superintendent L. E. McGinness of Steelton; second vice-president, G. D. Robb, principal, Altoona High school; third vice-president, Mattie W. The total enrollment of teachers and delegates numbered 1,000 persons. In the resolutions passed, the character of the entertainment was spoken of particularly in highest terms. Before returning home members of the association were accorded a free excursion to Ebensburg over the Pennsylvania railroad.

In the matter of raising a corn crop soils are much like men in the work which is assigned them, a soil of moderate or rather low fertility giving better results when there are two rather than when there are three or four stalks in the hill.

The prize of $1,000 is still hanging up for the orchardist of the northwest who can develop an apple that will keep through the winter and possess a quality equal to the Wealthy. While many are at work there is no assurance that the end sought will be attained.

A supply of machine oil will sometimes save wear and tear on human nerves as well as the gearing of a windmill. One of these we know produces a weird sound that in the dead of a still night is calculated to people the hearer's imagination with wraiths, spooks and others of the hobgoblin fraternity.

On many of the large wheat farms of the northwest steam and gasoline traction engines have almost entirely replaced the horse in plowing, harvesting and thrashing operations. Engines of the latter type, because they make possible a dispensing with water and fuel wagons, are particularly adapted to conditions prevailing in the territory referred to.

One of the most serious drought conditions to be reported for several years has prevailed in northeast Kansas and southeast Nebraska for more than a month past. Reports coming from the affected district state that the strawberry crop has been ruined and oats are a practical failure. Corn sprouted poorly and is in a critical condition, while vegetable gardens are fast drying up. There is a possibility that there will be a reversing of weather conditions to the droughty period of six and eight years ago.

We know of a number of men who have been utterly indifferent to the practical advantages of tiling as a means of reclaiming wet pieces of land who have had their eyes opened and the lesson brought home by the rapid drying up of soils adjacant to tiling laid with a view to draining water from the family cellar. This much of an object lesson is usually sufficient. One of the men belonging to the class mentioned is this year raising a bumper crop of corn on just such a piece of low land, as these low tracts almost always possess a superabundant fertility and require but the draining off of surplus water to yield bountifully.

The seventeen year locust, whose periodical appearances are closely watched by the specialists of the agricultural department, will appear this year, according to a bulletin recently issued by the government, in northern Illinois, portions of Maryland and several other adjacent southern states. Information regarding the appearance of the insects in any portion of the country is desired by the bureau at Washington, with a view to keeping the closest possible track of them. While there has been comparatively slight damage from this pest in recent years, the government wishes to keep as well posted touching the time and place of their periodic appearance as possible, with a view to being prepared for them should the damage from them give promise of being considerable.

It does not serve to lessen the regret a whit that the little one in the home is bitten by the pet family dog rather than by the tramp cur that happens to stroll past the place. Recently there have come to our notice two cases of this kind. In the one a little two-year-old was killed outright by a pet bulldog that had been angered by boys in the neighborhood, its jaws having to be pried open before the grip of the animal's teeth could be freed from the little one's throat. In the second instance a large Dane attacked a little child of about the same age, a son of the owner, and nearly killed him before it was clubbed off. There may be cases where a watchdog is a necessity, but they are getting scarcer every day. Since it is the bark of a dog that is the important thing, a pug or terrier will answer this purpose in most cases, and should they attack the children in the home they would not mangle them quite so badly.

A water pan placed on the lawn will be largely patronized as well as highly appreciated by the birds that nest about your home.

The tame pigeon is one of the most profitless propositions on the farm, its use as pot pie timber seldom serving to pay for its keep.

Satisfaction and misery are all too often associated with a consciousness that a fellow is better off or less favorably situated than his neighbors.

One's real age is often more accurately indicated by the way he feels than by the color of his hair. The mile post index is an unsatisfactory one.

The condition of a fellow's bank account is often quite accurately indicated by the manner in which he cultivates his corn and the care he gives his home premises.

Every man who is occupied in mental work owes it to himself to take at least an hour of vigorous exercise or manual labor every day. This will serve to keep him up to tone and will prevent his strings from snapping or rusting.

For the gardener or farmer a protracted dry spell simply means the giving of a greater measure of time and care to cultivation, as a loose and mellow condition of soil will quite largely overcome all but the most extreme drought effects.

The arrangements of the home yard and buildings should be such that the odor of the flower beds will reach the passerby before that from the pigpen. While the Poland China can't be beat as a mortgage lifter or money raiser, his place is out behind the barn.

Luther Burbank, who has justly earned the cognomen "Wizard" by reason of the marvelous creations of his genius in horticultural lines, has this year planted 4,000 varieties of potatoes with a view to developing a type which shall be more prolific than any yet known as well as uniform in size and proof against disease.

There is little excuse, except it be downright physical inability, for any family which has access to a piece of ground if they do not raise therefrom during the summer a supply of vegetables sufficient to carry them through the winter. Poverty and destitution both as regards food and raiment are often but other names for downright shiftlessness and laziness. Touching the rewards she bestows Dame Nature quite closely follows the adage, "If a man will not work, neither shall he eat."

A granger taking a whirl on the board of trade stands about the same chance of winning out that the fellow does who bucks the wheel of fortune at the county fair, the prospect being good in either case that the one who indulges will get skinned. The first institution is maintained for the purpose of picking the lambs, the second for taking in the suckers, neither being operated for benevolent purposes. There are nine chances to one that if a fellow makes good on a corn deal he will get caught short on pork. Raising hogs for market is therefore a better proposition all around than speculating with the carcass or byproducts on 'change.

An even casual observation of plant life reveals a wonderful adaptation of the plant to its condition and a degree of intelligence difficult to understand in so low a form of life. While we readily note the fact, it is not so easy to explain why the apple tree puts forth a supreme effort to produce fruit when marked for death by some of its numerous enemies, why the sunflower keeps its bright face toward the sun throughout the course of his journey from the east unto the west, and so throughout the whole realm of nature the same instinctive intelligence is shown, revealing not so much conscious manifestation on the part of the creature in plant or animal realm as the marvelous intelligence and oversight of an all wise and all powerful Creator.

The largest authenticated yield of corn so far as has come under our notice is that reported by a central Iowa farmer who last year raised 147 bushels on one acre of ground. In addition to manuring the land heavily, he put it in the best of tilth before planting. He used a planter which placed the rows three feet and eight inches apart and a drill which planted the kerneks six inches apart in the row. After he had gone over the field in the ordinary way he went over it again, straddling the rows. This made the rows twenty-two inches apart. Aside from the harrowing which was given the field before the corn came up the only tool used was a single horse two shovel cultivator. The crop was laid by June 15. When he husked the crop he surprised himself as well as his neighbors. The extraordinary yield obtained was the result of planting the very best and thoroughly tested seed, rich and forcing soil and careful cultivation. There is reason to believe that this yield could only be got from the richest and best soil, as the chances are three to one that a less fertile soil, planted with just as good seed and given exactly the same tillage would not have produced nubbins enough to pay for going over the field.

PRIZES FOR GOOD ROADS.

A very commendable rivalry that has been inaugurated by a county agricultural society of a western state is the outgrowth of offering a series of prizes for portions of the county roads kept in the best shape by the use of the King drag. Farmers living along the roads leading into the county seat have already begun work on the roads with a view to securing the prizes, and a marked improvement in their condition has been noted. There are features connected with this competition which lead one to hope that it may become to an extent epidemic.

WHAT FOREST TREES TO PLANT.

A reader of these notes residing in the northern part of the writer's home state writes an interesting letter in which he takes exception to a recent article which appeared in this department in which the soft maple was recommended as the most practical tree to plant with a view to securing a grove that would make a quick growth and insure a supply of fuel of fairly good quality. For the purpose named we see no reason for revising the recommendation as made. Assuming a different ultimate object in the planting of a grove, which our correspondent does, we agree quite fully with him in his suggestions. His view in regard to tree planting is that, barring shade trees, no tree should be planted which will not ultimately produce a saw log, this because of the increasing scarcity of timber and consequent increase in price. For this reason he holds that every farmer should prepare for the future and take precautions which will insure him a supply of lumber at the end of a period of twenty-five or thirty years. For this purpose he thinks no tree will compare with the cottonwood, which under favorable conditions will make a growth of three-fourths of an inch in diameter annually. In thirty years' time this would give a tree large enough so that it could be sawed into material especially adapted for the inside of barn buildings. He recommends planting the inside rows with black walnut, a few rows on either side with cottonwoods, with European larch on the outside. In his own words: "All are moderately fast growers. In twenty years' time the larches would be ready to sell for telephone poles, in thirty years the cottonwoods would be valuable for the purposes above mentioned, and at any period later the walnuts would be rapidly increasing in value. They should all be planted thick enough so that they would grow tall and the lower branches fall off and be trimmed to a height of twenty or thirty feet, gradually thinning out as necessity required." In case the farmer has a grove our friend recommends planting walnuts in all vacant places, which in time would give a desirable walnut grove, a suggestion that is timely. For the man who is willing to wait the length of time necessary the plan our correspondent suggests is admirable and his suggestion as to the varieties of trees desirable for planting excellent, but we fear for the average farmer it requires too high a type of horticultural faith, which, while commendable, is of rare occurrence, but which perhaps for that reason needs every possible encouragement. For the man who has faith and is willing to wait the plan of tree planting suggested is first rate; for the one who feels he cannot wait so long and does not have in view a lumber supply the soft maple grove will be found a very satisfactory substitute.

A NEW INTEREST IN PEAT.

With a rapid stripping of the great forest areas of the north and west to supply the enormous lumber trade of the country and a somewhat slower yet just as sure consumption of the hard wood and coal supplies of the central and western states for use as fuel, attention is now being directed to the vast yet untouched deposits of peat to be found in the north central states. According to the state geological survey, northern Iowa and southern Minnesota alone contain in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 tons of peat, much of it due to drier seasons and drainage systems, being in a partially dry condition. The deposit of peat, which is nothing but the accumulation of the decayed vegetable matter of generations past, covers hundreds of acres and varies from four to ten feet in thickness. Plans are already on foot for the establishment of plants which will press and dry the peat and put it on the market. Those who have tested the fuel qualities of peat state that it is superior to the best hard wood and is surpassed by coal only in the respect that it contains somewhat more carbon. Peat is far superior to coal in that it contains no sulphur, makes little smoke and no soot or clinkers. It makes a fine white ash, giving a fire that is very hot or mild, as occasion requires. Provided it can be put in convenient shape and placed on the market at a reasonable price, which seems entirely likely, the demand for this new fuel is bound to be enormous.

GOVERNMENT MEAT INSPECTION.

There has not been an agitation affecting agricultural interests in years that comes home to the farmer more closely than that involved in the discussion of a government inspection of the animals and meat handled by the packing plants of the country. While the least possible agitation of the matter and a superficial and slipshod disposition of the same would seem at first thought to be favorable to the business interests involved, yet in the long run and from the broad point of view that settlement of the matter can only prove of lasting benefit which is complete, exhaustive and goes to the bottom of things, this being particularly true because the public mind is just as much in need of definite assurance of the purity of its food supplies as its physical appetite is in need of satisfaction.

Fifty-one Fourth of July Deaths.

Chicago, July 6.—Fifty-one lives thrown away and 3,551 celebrants maimed or injured, some of them fatally, is the record of this year's "glorious Fourth," as compiled to date by correspondents of the Tribune. KILLED INTRUDER.

Former Sayre Man Shot a Thief in City of Chicago.

The Lehigh employees running to Sayre from Buffalo are telling a story of how George Ply, formerly a Lehigh engineman, recently shot a man in Chicago.

Ply, after a long service on the Lehigh, living at Sayre, entered the employ of the Baldwin Locomotive company. Recently he was sent West with a locomotive to be delivered to a Western road. He rode in a cab of the engine until he reached Chicago. In the cab he had prepared a bunk where he slept and he also had a small outfit for cooking his meals. While the engine was sidetracked in Chicago a thief attempted to enter the cab, not being aware that anyone was inside. Ply was awakened, and pulling a revolver shot towards the dim form he could just distinguish in the darkness. The thief dropped dead. Ply was placed under arrest by the Chicago police but the Baldwin Locomotive company came to his rescue and he was quickly released as it was shown that the shot was fired in self defense.

Stone and other material used in building these cribs is being sent out on the cable from the East bank. It is welcome news that the steamship America, of the Fabre line, overdue 14 days, with 110 passengers bound for Naples and Marseilles for New York, has been heard from, her machinery having been crippled badly. She was picked up and towed to Bermuda by the Dinnamare.

England's war minister proposes to teach the regular soldiers trades while they are loafing around camp and garrisons between tours of military duty. It seems poor economy in society at an age when they have lost their adaptiveness and snap without a trade that will yield a support.

Fred Ireland, chief stenographer of the house of representatives estimates that forty million words were spoken in debate in both houses during this session of congress. What a power of eloquence was wasted upon the desert air. Outside a few congressmen who aim to keep track of proceedings nobody has read more of the proceedings than appeared in the condensed news dispatches.

The Scranton Truth makes the following remark: At the sessions of all educational associations during the Summer months, the matter of annuities or pensions will be pretty thoroughly discussed. This matter has had more or less attention for some years past, but the recent gift of Andrew Carnegie has been received with such widespread enthusiasm, some definite action is looked for in many sections.

Butler is trying an experiment with the gentlemen who go from house to house asking for something to eat. The city government has issued 1,000 tickets each good for a meal when countersigned by the mayor. When the lady of the house is importuned for a meal she hands the applicant one of the tickets. The tramp presents himself before the mayor, who countersigns the ticket after its owner has worked for two hours on the public streets. The county stone pile has proved efficacious in this vicinity.

One of the most interesting reports presented at the 28th annual meeting of the Aemerican Library association is that of gifts and bequests to libraries in the year 1905. The figures show that Andrew Carnegie's gifts in the United States for 1905 number 211, and amount to over $3,000,000. The total number of all gifts of money to libraries in this country for purposes other than the purchase of books was 680, with a total value including the Carnegie gifts of about $5,000,000.

None of the members of the Builders' Exchange, comprising all the big contractors, put in a bid for the $50,000 job of repairing the court house at Scranton, because the commissioners required that union labor only should be employed. The exchange notified the commissioners that if the contract is let with the union clause in it, the exchange will go into court to have it annulled. The commissioners decided to do the work themselves and engaged Senator P. F. Calpin, who is a union contractor, to hire men and supervise the work on a commission of 10 per cent.

STUART'S ACCEPTANCE.

The Republican State candidates were formally notified on Saturday last of their nomination, and elsewhere we give the speech of acceptance of the nominee for governor, former mayor Edwin S. Stuart o f Philadelphia.

At this time peculiar importance will attach to the declaration of the Republican standard bearer in this State, and we trust it will be read by all voters. It is a frank, manly and comprehensive discussion of state issues by an honorable, high minded citizen whose whole past life is an assurance that he will endeavor to keep, and sacredly, all his promises.

Touching this point he says:

"Since I am summoned in this manner as standard bearer of the Republican party, without solicitation on my part, and am free and unembarrassed by personal or political obligations, the p ath of duty is plain. I accept the nobination.

"I would decline it if its acceptance implied any obligation that w ould not leave me absolutely free and untrammeled in the exercise of my judgment for the best interests of the whole whole people.

"I approve without hesitation or reservation the party's declaration of principles, and I stand squarely on the platform adopted by the convention. If I am elected it shall be my aim to use what influence I mav possess to give practical effect to its recommendations."

The platform clearly defines the new political duties that have arisen from new conditions, and the party stands pledged to enact legislation to correct existing evils and to give the people of the Commonwealth at the earliest practicable moment the benefits of remedial legislation to hold in check and control corporations and to secure the equal rights of all.

And again, "If there are any who expect the Governor of Pennsylvania to be the head of, or part of a political faction to advance the interests of one person and to stand in the way of another, or to use his official power to promote individual or factional aims, they should not vote for me. I do not desire an election that has any other meaning than the triumph of the principles of good government, or from which there could be expected anything but honest and impartial administration of the executive office in the interest of the whole people."

Can there be any question as to where the Republican nominee for governor stands on the over-shadowing issues of this campaign, or what will be the policy of his administration if elected? In the minds of candid men there is not a shadow of a doubt. He stands pledged by the party platform, by his coadjutors on the ticket and by his own words publicly spoken, to "give practical effect to the pledges made by the convention that made him the party nominee. And all his past life and all that he holds most dear is assurance that his promise will be faithfully kept. In the same spirit that this pledge is given it will, we believe, be accepted by the Republican voters of the state, and they will say by their votes in November that they trust him.

An Unprotected Asset.

It is significant of the valuation placed upon good advertising "copy" that strenuous efforts were made at the late session of congress to have advertising illustrations and text placed under the protection of the copyright law. An original and striking "ad." is no less valuable an asset than an original and striking book, and by the same token it ought to be safeguarded from piracy at the hands of those who are unscrupulous enough to trade upon the product of other people's brains. Congress failed to pass the new copyright law, but at the next session a renewed attempt will be made to impress upon it the fact that property rights should be recognized in advertising as well as in their application to the tangible assets of an established business.—Philadelphia Record.

Interesting statistics regarding the growth of the national banking system since 1900, when the law went into effect permitting the organization of banks with capital of only $25,000, are contained in a report from the comtroller's office. In the number of banks since 1900, Texas ranks first, with 330 institutions, and a capital of $13,990,000; Pennsylvania is second, with 303 banks and a capital of $22,927,000; Minnesota comes third, with 177 to her credit, and then, in order, are Illinois, with 168; Ohio, with 159; Iowa, with 140; New York and Indiana, with 107 each.

An Adams county man lost a more or less valuable bull in a peculiar manner the other day. When the cattle were taken in from the field in the evening they rushed for the watering trough with such eagerness as to throw the bull into it on his back. As he was rather under the average size and as the cattle completely surrounded the trough, the animal was drowned before the owner realized his predicament. To the impartial observer it looks as though the owner of those cattle should provide some method of assuaging their thirst frequently during the hot term.

There is an interesting item in "Notes and Queries" about the Russian word "Douma." The word seems to have been borrowed by Russia from her Scandinavian neighbors. "Domr" is an important term in Icelandic law, meaning a court of justice —the body of judges. In this sense it came into use in Russia; hence the present Douma is an assembly of councillors met to pronounce their doom or judgment.

"COMMERCIAL AMERICA IN 1905."

"Commercial America in 1905" is the title of a monograph just issued by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics. It discusses the commerce of and commercial conditions in 1905 where possible, or in the latest available year where the figures of 1905 have not been announced.

The special purpose of this monograph is to present the latest available information regarding commerce and commercial conditions in the various countries south of the United States, practically all of which are to be represented in the Pan-American congress which is to meet in Rio de Janerio in the present month, and to supply to the delegation from the United States and to others attending the congress this information in a single volume and in convenient form for study and reference. The work has been under preparation in the bureau of statistics for several months, and includes statistics of the imports and exports of each American country by principal articles and the countries from which the imports are drawn and those to which exports are sent.

Great difficulty has been encountered by the bureau of statistics in the preparation of this document in view of the fact that more than half of the countries of Central and South America have no satisfactory statistics of their foreign commerce. Statements with reference to their trade were therefore necessarily made up by taking from the records of the principal importing and exporting nations of the world the statements of their trade with the countries in question and supplementing them with such other information as could be obtained from consular reports and other standard and generally accepted publications. By this process the bureau of statistics has been able to present a picture of trade conditions in every country and island of America, supplemented with a text discussion regarding production, transportation, and commerce and commercial possibilities of each, and this is followed by a detailed statement of the trade of the United States with each of the countries and islands in question, by articles, during a term of years.

The total commerce of all America is shown to be $5,050,027,000, of which $2,806,119,000 is that of the United States, leaving $2,242,908,000 as the total commerce of all American countries other than the United States, imports and exports being combined to form these grand totals. Considering imports separately, the total for all America is $2,184,377,000, of which $1,179,135,000 is the imports of the United States, and the remaining $1,005,242,000, the imports of other American countries. The exports of all America are $2,865,650,000, of which $1,626,984,000 is from the United States and the remainder, $1,238,666,000, is the exports of all other American countries. Thus, of imports into all America about 54 per cent. enter the United States, and of the exports from all America about 57 per cent. go from the United States.

Turning to the countries south of the United States, the chief subject of interest at the present moment, the monograph shows that the imports of all American countries and islands lying south of the United States aggregated 732 million dollars in the latest available year, and the exports aggregated $1,0003,000,000. Of these imports the United States supplies 189 million dollars, or practically 26 per cent.; of the exports the United States takes 350 million dollars, or practically 35 per cent.

Speaking about the state policemen who are now at Allentown helping to preserve the peace, one of them made a plain statement of fact which is thus reproduced by the Allentown Chronicle and News: "We have nothing against the strikers and are not here to interfere with them, but we are here to maintain order and when called out to do this duty we will do it. We know nothing about about your local conditions, but will resent all insults and throwing of stones and brick bats at us. We have arrested nobody unlawfully and intend to do our duty when called upon." That is the case in a nutshell. With strikes and strikers, as such, the state police have nothing to do. It is only violations of law of which they take cognizance and violaters of the law with whose plans they interfere.

The New York Mail of Thursday presented to its readers with an impressive cartoon under the title, "Whatsoever a man soeth—" In the distance a man and woman sit at a table. A bottle is between them. He smokes a cigar. In the foreground Death, a hideous skeleton sits upon a coffin while the floor upon which it rests is strewn with bottles and wine glasses. It is all the more impressive because it pictures the tragic end of many a promising life.

According to a ruling of Judge Bouton, of McKean county, at the recent term of license court, if a man of intemperate habits has been debarred by notice of interested parties for getting drinks, the recinding of such notices does not change the situation. The hotel man is expected to still refuse drinks to any man who is once under the ban by such notification.

According to State Superintendent Schaeffer's interpretation of the school laws, any township that does not have a township high school must pay the tuition of scholars who have passed the district school and wish to enter a high school, even if the high school is in another county.

THE CRIME OF MURDER.

The newspapers of the country have already printed a great many things about the Thaw-White case, some wise, some foolish, and will probably continue to do so. Ordinarily it would be well to have such matters disposed of by the court and the jury, but it is not the American way. Concerning White it must be said that if the half the reporters and correspondents are saying about him is true the public will come to the inevitable conclusion that he invited his fate. As far as Thaw is concerned, he does not seem to have been a whit better, although a much younger man.

The evidence seems to prove that White was a man who made it the business of his life to tempt young girls, especially chorus girls, by a lavish expenditure of money. Among his intimate friends in not the very remote past was the young woman who is now Harry Thaw's wife. Thaw was also a dissolute spendthrift, giving his friends trouble of one sort or another almost constantly. It is claimed that he traveled over Europe with the lady before he married her. At any rate the ceremony was performed after their return.

Thus far it is impossible to determine just why Thaw deliberately killed White. Various theories have been advanced. Possibly the truth will come out at the trial. But it will be difficult to prove that it was not murder in the first degree, for the killing was done coolly and deliberately. The result of that trial, since this is America, is difficult to foretell. As the Louisville Evening Post remarks, if the killing had taken place in England the execution of Thaw upon the scaffold could already be said to be a certainty. There are faults in the jurisprudence of Great Britain, but they punish crime over there with more certainty than any other.

The last murder in high life in Great Britain was the celebrated case of Earl Ferrers, who shot and killed a servant in a fit of anger. He was immensely wealthy and his social standing was high. He was arrested and demanded a trial by the house of lords, his peers. The lord chancellor of Great Britain presided at the trial. The jury which tried him contained many of his personal friends. But the evidence was heard, the prisoner was found guilty and sentenced by the lord chancellor to death upon the scaffold. Two weeks from that date he was hanged. Since that time British noblemen have refrained from murdering their servants. The principle is firmly established in Great Britain that whoever commits the crime of murder, no matter how high his standing or how large his wealth, must pay the extreme penalty for his crime. When the example of the mother country is imitated in the United States the crime of murder will be less frequent.—Altoona Tribune.

PREEMINENT IN ATHLETICS.

The following from the editor of the Addison Advertiser pays deserved tribute to Cornell University where a number of Bradford county boys are completing their education: "You cannot blame a Cornell man for feeling proud of the splendid showing which the Ithacans have made this year in athletics. The wonderful victory on the Hudson is only a small part of the laurels which Cornell men have won recently. The cross country championship, semi-championship honors in cricket, second honors in base ball, a victory over Harvard and Pennsylvania crews, a victory over all the crews at Poughkeepsie with the exception of the Syracuse freshmen, and first honors over all the colleges in the East in the great intercollegiate athletic meet held recently at Cambridge—all these belong to the Ithacans. No other college in the country has so much to its credit. And the best of it all is the fact that athletics at Cornell are absolutely pure. No college requires more of its students in study. Athletics are of secondary importance. Sports are stimulated for sport's sake. There are no hired athletes, no inducements of any kind except the honor of wearing the "C." Considering that Cornell is the youngest of the big universities the showing made by the Ithacans is most remarkable and deserves universal praise."

Many cities and towns throughout the country have of late years become steady advertisers, reasoning that if individuals and corporations engaged in business get what they want through publicity the same means ought to produce like results for whole communities. Most centers of population have a laudable aspiration to achieve growth through the attraction of outside capital and industry. Boston, which is no exception to the rule, has joined the ranks of the advertising cities. The aldermen have appropriated $50,000 of the city's funds for publicity, and $50,000 is to be added by private subscription. It is needless to add that a considerable proportion of the fund is to be expended on newspaper space.—Philadelphia Record.

It is now heard that down at Vincennes, Indiana, the ice companies are at war and are almost giving their ice away. Vincennes may make a large additional gain by going around and instructing other cities how such a reversal of the general rule can be attained.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Eight thousand master carpenters won an advance of wages from $4.50 to $4.80 a day by a strike that lasted two hours. In that case the "coon came down in a hurry. There are now 18,000 carpenters in New York receiving the advance wages.

BUSINESS FAILURES.

According to Dun's Review, commercial failures in the United States for the first half of the current calendar year were 5,612 with aggregated liabilities of $62,664,074, compared to 6,210 with liabilities of $55,904,585 for the corresponding half of 1905.

The failures of manufacturing concerns were 1,260 with liabilities of $21,989,522 compared with 1,426 last year with liabilities of $23,343,220. The trading failures were 4,154 with $25,505,978 of liabilities, compared to 4,624 with liabilities of $28,894,578 in 1905. Commercial failures, including real estate failures, brokerage and similar occupations, were 198 for $15,168,574, compared to 160 for $3,666,787 for 1905. There were 28 suspensions of banks and other fiduciary institutions, with liabilities of $5,585,332, compared to 44 with liabilities of $9,803,307 in 1905.

In New England there was a decrease of 10 per cent. in the number of failures, but an increase of $400,000 in amount of liabilities. In the Middle States there was a decrease of 100 in number and about $2,000,000 in liabilities. The Central Western states showed a considerable increase both in number and amount of liabilities, Illinois having $9,640,134, compared to $3,286,042 in 1905, and Ohio having an increase of nearly $2,000,000. The totals for the Far Western states showed only slight differences, and the Pacific states a considerable decrease. Taken as a whole, the returns from all parts of the country make a distinctly favorable showing thus far for 1906.

RESOURCEFUL ROOSEVELT.

Officials of the coal and oil trusts are likely to be somewhat startled when they learn that it is the intention of President Roosevelt to go ahead and accomplish under the executive authority, the purpose outlined in a joint resolution offered by Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, namely, to withdraw all coal and oil fields now a part of the public domain from settlement, purchase or entry, and to segregate these lands for an indefinite time.

The purpose of this move is to head off the oil trust and the coal trust, which are now engaged in attempting to secure possession of all the remaining fuel beds in the United States.

It is the idea of the president that, in addition to averting a monopoly in fuel, these coal fields would be of incalculable assistance to the government in a time of strike or tie up resulting from a disagreement between operators and the miners of the coal fields.

President Roosevelt does not hesitate to admit that he would give an exhibition of government ownership and operation of coal mines in such a contingency.

The Standard Oil and coal trust officials no doubt have thought that they had accomplished their purpose when they prevented the adoption of the LaFollette resolution in the senate. Their mistake will become apparent to them in due time.

Some notion of the value of the prints exhibited from time to time at the library of congress can be obtained by a knowledge of the prices brought by certain examples at a recent sale in Leipsic. There a single copy of Albrecht Durer's "Melancholy" sold for $3,250 and of his "Adam and Eve" for $2,275, while his "Knight, Death and the Devil" brought $775.50. Rembrandt's "Landscape With Three Huts" commanded $2,200, his portrait of Clement de Jonghe $1,600, his rare "Landscape With Square Tower" $1525, and his "Christ Teaching" $1,027.50. A portrait of Maximilian I. by Lucas van Leyden reached $2,250, and Altdorfer's "Christ on the Cross" brought $487.50.—Elmira Advertiser.

These are absolute necessities, and every home should have them, as well as other simple tools. They will save dollars in time and temper every year. A spool of small copper wire is also useful in mending harness and a hundred other things.

As evidence that the Indian Territory has reached a stage of civilization that entitles her to statehood, one druggist is advertising "house paint, face paint and nose paint."—Wilkes-Barre Times.

Vital Heat of Vegetables.

It will be a novel thought to many that not only animals, but vegetables also, generate a degree of heat by their life processes. It has been observed that the sap of healthy trees is not affected, as other liquids are, by frost; that the inner parts of fibrous plants are warmer than the air on cold days, and that snow melts more rapidly at the foot of living trees than around dead ones. Some vegetables of their own accord grow warmer until midday and then cool off again as the sun declines. The act of flowering has also been found to give rise to an increase of temperature. The stalk of an Italian arum may have a daily increase of no less than 10½ degrees, and the stalk of another plant has been known to be as warm as 100 degrees F.

A Generous Cardinal.

Cardinal Bonaparte was a grandson of Lucien Bonaparte. He was a very charitable man. During one of his illnesses a servant came to him and said that a poor person at the door begged for alms. "Give him what money you will find in my purse," said the cardinal. "There is no money, eminence. The silver spoons are all given away. We have nothing left but pewter spoons." "Well, bring him in and give him a good meal."

Certainly remarkable, when you consider that wool has been advanced 10 to 25 per cent. in price. With many clothing manufacturers that increase meant less hand-tailoring or inferior materials—probably both—to keep down to what they were last year. That was not the case with the makers of

CHURCH REPAIRS.

Presbyterian Edifice Handsomely Decorated and Thoroughly Cleaned.

The extensive repairs and decorating of the Presbyterian church, under way for the past three weeks, are entirely completed and services were held in the main auditorium on Sunday at the usual hours. The interior has been handsomely decorated by an Elmira contractor.

The groundwork of the walls and ceiling is a very light drab color, almost an olive tint, banded with scroll work in dark olive; cornices and woodwork excepting the wainscoating is white. A narrow gold stripe sets off the other colors handsomely, and the fresco designs show marked artistic taste. The front of the organ has been re-decorated in dark shades of the same colors as the walls, and the outside woodwork has also been repainted.

In addition the main building has received a most thorough cleaning under the capable direction of Janitor Espy, the windows, chandeliers and every bit of woodwork having been gone over by hand with soap and water and polish. The cushions and carpet have been cleaned and when the church was thrown open on Sunday the congregation found it "as good as new." It was also necessary to replaster much of the interior before decorating.

MINERS LOST $12,000,000.

Figures Just Compiled Show Wage Loss During Suspension.

Figures just compiled under the direction of the president of one of the largest coal companies with headquarters in Scranton, show that the wage loss to mine workers during the suspension of work from April 1 to May 15, ordered by John Mitchell, president of the miners' union, amounted to more than $12,000,000. The total anthracite shipments in April, 1905, were 5,278,041 tons; and for May, 1905, 6,500,158 tons. Estimated on this basis the tonnage from April 1 to May 15, 1906, would have been more than 8,000,000 tons. The average amount paid in wages of labor per ton of production in the anthracite field is $1.55, showing a loss of at least $12,400,000 sustained by the wage earners.

The $1.55 per ton does not include the salaries of superintendents, office men or any other wage item beyond the amount paid to the actual workers in the mine and breaker. During the period of idleness the men received no allowances from their union, so that when they returned to the mines after six weeks' idleness their loss of earnings amounted to over $12,000,000 net.

LOOKING FOR CANDIDATES.

State Prohibitionists Want Someone to Run for Governor.

Prohibition State Chairman David B. McCalmont has issued a call for the state executive committee to meet in Pittsburg, Tuesday, July 17, to decide upon a successor to William H. Berry, the gubernatorial candidate. Mr. McCalmont said he had no knowledge who the nominee would be.

"I find there is a strong sentiment for Lewis Emery, Jr.," he continued. "The Northwestern portion of the state is particularly strong for him. The Prohibition nomination would mean from 60,000 to 70,000 votes for the Bradford man.'

McCalmont said the other possibilities are Homer L. Castle of Pittsburg, A. A. Stevens of Tyrone, and James Mansel of Williamsport.

THE FOURTH IN TOWANDA WAS EXTREMELY QUIET.

The Small Boy's Firecrackers Alone Broke the Stillness.

Even the oldest inhabitant would be hard pushed to remember a more quiet Fourth of July than that of 1906 in Towanda. Business was entirely suspended, including work on the railroad contracts, and the great majority of the people betook themselves out of town to celebrate Independence day. Only the pop of the small boy's firecrackers and "paper cap" pistols broke the stillness. The downpour of rain the previous day and evening made picnicking almost impossible. The several motor boats on the river were well patronized, however. No accidents were reported.

That evening Division No. 2, A. O. H., gave a well attended dance in St. Agnes hall, for which Clancy's orchestra played.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

Enjoyable Gathering Reported Last Week at Sugar Ridge.

The home of Mrs. Lillie Chilson at Sugar Ridge, was the scene of a pleasant gathering Thursday, July 5, the occasion being Mrs. Chilson's 42d birthday. Mrs. Chilson had been invited to her brother's for dinner and was getting ready to go when the company began to arrive. She was completely surprised, but she cheerfully submitted to circumstances and heartily entered into the pleasures of the day.

At 12 o'clock the company sat down to a dinner that was fit for a king, and that to which all did ample justice. After dinner they all enjoyed music and singing until about 4 o'clock, when the friends and relatives began to go their various ways. Mrs. Chilson was the recipient of some valuable and useful presents. When Loyd Gale started home, going out of the door yard, he met a four foot rattler with nine rattles; he quickly secured a club and killed the snake.

Lightning's Strange Work.

During a severe electrical storm which visited Mina, Potter county, lightning struck the home of Fred Fogg, tearing two large holes in the roof, and made its way through a wall. At the time of the shock Mr. and Mrs. Fogg and their three children were in the house. The eldest daughter, Mrs. Ostrander, was sitting in a chair, down stairs. The lightning took one of the rockers from the chair, but did not in any way hurt her, nor did she experience a shock of any degree of severity. — Williamsport Evening News.

Some Ancient Footwear.

There is on exhibition in McKeeby's shoe store on South Main street three pairs of shoes and two slippers, examples of the shoemaker's art as practiced some 60 years ago. They are ladies' and children's fancy light shoes, without heels, and likewise without much shape, although in their day were considered elegant. These goods formed part of the stock carried by a store in Bradford county. They are well worth an inspection as curiosities.

BUSY AT THE BRIDGE.

Cement Carrying Apparatus in Working Order—Driving Piles.

The cement carrying apparatus of S. B. Mutchler & Co., at the site of the new railroad bridge is all ready for business. Friday the engineers of the hoisting engines in the cable towers on both sides of the river were testing and trying the machinery to get things limbered up for real business. The huge buckets are run out into the river to any desired point, and then with the same engine lowered to the exact spot where cement is wanted.

Work on the foundation for the East abutment is being pushed, and steam pumps and derricks are kept busy. Out in the middle of the stream an engine and pile driver mounted on a flat boat is at work.

The erection of the false work for the abutment of the West bank is slowly nearing completion. It is a job that has to be done substantially and it requires a very large amount of lumber. Two weeks have been spent upon it already. Common laborers are scarce and considerable difficulty has been experienced in getting enough of that sort of help at $1.50 per day.

A large quantity of dirt from the shovel at the Laning farm is being placed along the bank above the bridge.

BURGLARY AT NORTH TOWANDA

The Meyers General Store Raided by Tramps Saturay Morning.

The general store of Claude N. Myers at North Towanda, was burglarized at an early hour on Saturday morning, presumably by a gang of tramps that has been making its headquarters in that vicinity for several days. The front door was forced. The burglars left absolutely no clue.

There was taken from the till about one dollar in pennies, and from the stock a quantity of shirts and overalls, shoes and some bananas. The greater number of shoes taken were number eights. One pair was a size 4½. One pair was marked "Seneca," and several pairs were marked "Waterproof, vulcanized."

NOW MIXING CONCRETE.

Start Made Friday Afternoon on the Piers at East Towanda.

The first bucket of concrete for the piers for the overhead crossing of the Lehigh Valley at East Towanda was dumped Friday afternoon at 2:30. One of the largest power cement mixers manufactured is used by Contractor Dolan for the work and a large gang of men is kept hustling to feed the raw materials into the machine and take away the product, which is handled by a steam derrick.

The steam shovel at East Towanda has been idle all the week because of the non-receipt of a part of the machine broken some days ago. It is expected to begin digging again on Monday.

Lightning Struck Valuable Barn.

Sunday afternoon during the severe storm lightning struck the George Morse barn at Athens and set it on fire. The barn was a costly one and stood about 25 feet in the rear of the residence. The bolt entered the building at the north western corner and came out the south eastern corner next to the house, where it made a hole in the ground. The horse and carriages were saved. The good work of the firemen saved the house from destruction by the flames. The barn was a new one and worth about $600, on which there was an insurance of $300. Ruring the same storm the house belonging to John Raymond of Sayre was struck by lightning and considerable damage done.

TOZER BRIDGE ABUTMENT SLOWLY TOPPLING OVER.

County Commissioners Examine Concrete Work With View of Repairing.

There is a probability that it will be necessary to build a new abutment at the East end of what is known as "Tozer's bridge" across the Chemung river in Athens township, on account of the defects in the present abutments.

County Commissioners Marsh, McNulty and Harkness were in Sayre Friday and were driven to the bridge to make an examination. The bridge was erected many years ago and in order to save expense the ends of the structure were placed on steel cylinders, filled with concrete. These cylinders were stood on end in the ground, then filled with concrete, the ends of the bridge were placed on them and after this work had been completed the approaches were made.

For the past few years a large amount of repairs have been made to the bridge. It was re-planked last year, some time ago the piers were repaired and the abutment at the West end of the bridge was more firmly anchored. The abutment at the East end of the bridge is now gradually pressing outwards towards the river and if this is allowed to continue the bridge span will buckle.

In order that the bridge may not be damaged to any extent, in order that the best welfare of the community may be subserved it may be necessary to replace the two steel cylinders with a regulation concrete abutment. The county commissioners said they did not think it would be advisable to encase the cylinders inside the new abutment, but thought a better abutment could be erected by removing the cylinders and substituting an entirely new abutment.

A few days may pass before the commissioners are ready to give their decision and then if they decide to have a new abutment placed at the East end of the bridge, bids will be asked for.—Athens Evening News.

FAMOUS STONE DESTROYED.

Farmer's Fields Were Overrun by Visitors to See It.

Indignation has been aroused in Washington county by the destruction of the "painted rocks" near Millsboro. On the top of a hill rising above the Monongahela river stood an immense altar stone carved by Indians with figures of men, bears, wolves, snakes, and, strangest of all, a kangaroo. The rock was visited by thousands from all sections of the country. It stood on the ground owned by Joseph Horner, who became angered by the conduct of visitors and blew the historic altar into fragments with dynamite a short time ago. Horner says he did it in self-protection, as his farm was being overrun.

This remarkable rock has attracted attention since the earliest discoveries made in Western Pennsylvania. It has formed the subject for numerous reports by parties sent at different times by the United States government, and is spoken of and illustrated in many of the histories of the country. Hundreds of learned men in the United States, England, and France have examined it and written about it in works designed to solve the origin of the North American Indians.

For more than 100 years it has been considered one of the most important remains of the written characters of the Indians, and many interpretations have been made of the heiroglyphics. The news of the wanton destruction of the rock will be learned with regret by many of the present-day students of the life and manners of the North American Indians.

Boy Confessed Theft.

Two call boys, employed by the Lehigh at Sayre, were in the face of arrect Thursday afternoon on the charge of stealing two bicycles, when their parents interfered and promised to settle the case. The little chaps are employed nights calling railroad men to make trips over the road. They saw bicycles standing on the street without owners and the wheels looked like good things to them. The boys owned bicycles that needed repairs and the good machines had parts that they thought they could appropriate. —Evening News.

TOWANDA VS. WYSOX.

Closely Played Game of Ball at the East Side.

Towanda defeated Wysox at base ball on Saturday afternoon at the East Side grounds by a score of 10 to 9. The Wysox team had five Towanda players, including Watson in the box.

The game was loosely played, but the score was close enough to make it interesting. There were no brilliant plays made, but most of the players put up a good, steady game. Both Parsons and Watson pitched a good game, and were given good support. Bazzett and Mercur both put up a nice game behind the bat.

At the bat Acton for Towanda, and Weaver for Wysox, particularly distinguished themselves. Acton knocked out a clean two bagger; Weaver also came in for a two bagger, and then sent the ball to the willows for a home run. In the second innning Towanda ran in five runs, and in the eighth Wysox returned the compliment by sending six runners across the plate.

ARRESTS ARE LIKELY IN HAYNES CASE.

Jealousy Between Families Is the Alleged Cause of the Murder.

Developments of a sensational character are expected to materialize in the Maud Hayes case, within the next week, says the Scranton Tribune. These will be no less than the arrest of several persons who will be charged with her death.

Scranton detectives who have been working on the case since the disappearance of the child, will make the arrest. They suspect certain persons and have woven such a chain of circumstancial evidence around them, they say, that it will be almost impossible for them to escape conviction.

Readers are all familiar with the Maud Haynes case. A 14 years old girl was sent out from her home in Oakland, near Susquehanna, on an errand, by her mother. She was seen returning home, about 9 o'clock, but she never got there. The news of her disappearance was made public the next day and for months an energetic search was made for her. Rewards of all kinds were offered by persons who did not even know the family, for the reason that the child's parents have scarcely a dollar in the world. As weeks passed and nothing was heard of her, interest deepened and the case became the leading sensation in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

A month or so afterwards the parents of the child began to receive letters, which stated their child would be returned to them on payment of $500. This money was raised, twice over, but the child was not brought forward. Finally, about three weeks ago, when it began to appear as though the mystery would never be solved, the body of the girl was found floating in the river, near Binghamton, N. Y. That she had been murdered, is generally believed.

From the first, they inclined to the theory that family jealousy was responsible for the murder and that Oakland or Susquehanna was the place to look for the murderers. For weeks they searched for a clue, finally found one that pointed to certain individuals as being responsible, and ever since those persons have been so shadowed that even during their slumbers they have been under surveilance.

Already, it is said, sufficient evidence has been found against them to warrant their arrest, but there is one small link in the chain and the sleuths desire this forged before making the arrest. They are confident that this will be done before the week is out, and when it is the arrests will follow.

Made Good Showing.

The Towanda pitchers who took part in the Eourth of July games at New Albany and Rome were right there with the "goods." In the Towanda-New Albany game—score 9-4—Parsons struck out 17, and only allowed one hit. The New Albany pitcher struck out 10, but was batted for a large number of safe hits.

Watson, who pitched for Rome in the Rome-Durell game—score 14-1—, struck out 13, and alowed only three safe hits. Durell used three different pitchers, who all together got one strike out.

Canandian Trolley Extension.

The Ulster A. C. won two games from Athens on July 4, by the scores of 8 to 4 and 3 to 2. The morning game was a warm one, Johnson and Lawlor being the opposing pitchers, with Johnson doing the best work. Ulster hit Lawlor in bunches while Johnson was steady throughout. Ulster's infield played very fast ball and are beginning to show some of last season's form.

Score by innings:

Davidson pitched gilt-edged ball, holding Athens to one hit and striking out 16 men, while Mahany held Ulster to 7 hits and struck out 9 men. Davidson performed the feat of striking out the side in first inning on 9 pitched balls.

Dr. T. F. MADILL.

An Appreciation of the Character of a eloved Physician.

Funeral services over the remains of Dr. Thomas F. Madill, who died at Wysox, Wednesday morning, June 27, at 7 o'clock, after a short illness, of acute laryngitis, aged 77 years, were held and largely attended on Friday last at Locust Place, the family home, and beside the grave in the family plot, at the Wysox cemetery. The Rev. Edwin A. Gernant of Christ Church, Towanda, officiating. Mr. Gernant used the simple burial service of the Episcopal prayer book, and after it read the beautiful hymn, "Lead Kindly Light."

Dr. Madill's body rested in the center of the library, where he had spent many hours in study and pleasant thought.

A sheaf of heat, tied with a violet ribbon and a cycle done in heliotrope and white carnations lay upon the casket, and about the room were grouped many handsome floral tributes from loving friends. The pall bearers were Robert H. Laning, Dudley M. Turner, Walter G. Tracy and William Gordon, of Towanda, Louis Piollet and Steven Sullivan of Wysox.

Thomas F. Madill was a son of Alexander Madill, a physician of distinction, who was educated in Edinburgh, Scotland, and a brother of Henry J. Madill of Towanda, and Judge George A. Madill of St. Louis, both deceased. He married Eliza M. Weston, daughter of Dr. John N. Weston of Towanda, who with one daughter, Mrs. Galen B. Owen of New York city, and two sons, William L. Madill, of Port Jervis, and Robert Packer Madill of New York, survive him. An influence potent for good in the world was removed by the death of Dr. Madill. He was not only a great physician, he was a good man. For many years he toiled among us, faithful alike to the rich and the poor; bringing ever a word of cheer and help besides his wonderful medical ability to our aid. And his gentleness and tenderness were such as to peculiarly adapt him to his profession, which afforded him a sphere where his knowledge, his experience, his energy and his charm had united play.

His methods of well-doing were unostentatious. He was a modest man, reticent and retiring, but not even his modesty could always keep hidden his kindness of heart, and there are those who knew him more than the brilliant physician and wise counselor; who knew the man of incomparable charm and humor, and whose only regret has been that a zealous devotion to duty would not permit that warm and bright light to reeflct upon a wider horizon. And there are those who would pay their tribute to his sentiment, his kindliness, his encouragement and his assistance in all the varied forms that offer to a man of such rare self-reliance, native strength and manly sympathy. He was the fr iend of the young man, and his friendship knew no faltering. He never ceased to look for talent, and finding it, he never failed to contrive for it opportunity for demonstration. Many a young man has been helped to a college course and professional career through his efforts, and his influence for good still lives in the men whose lives and works he shaped and directed along the higher, better way.

Dr. Madill gave up his active practice seven years ago when he lost his youngest daughter, Daisy, suddenly of diphtheria—a sweet, attractive girl, beloved by all—and since that time he and his wife have spent the Winters in the cities, near their children, always returning to Locust Place for the Summer months, where they drew about them their family for the Summer outing. He had arrived in Wysox after a happy Winter in New York city, only the week before he died.

MAY MAKE LETTER BOXES.

Announced From Washington That Rural Restriction Is Removed.

No one feature of the rural mail delivery service has caused more trouble than the question the kind of box patrons of the rural routes shall use, and many patrons kicked long and vigorously against having to buy a certain kind. Now comes the following news dispatch from Washington:

"Postmaster General Cortelyou has issued an order to go into effect Aug. 1, rescinding the regulation under which patrons of rural mail routes are compelled to purchase boxes from one of the 200 listed manufacturers. Patrons may construct their own boxes if they conform to the requirements of the department as to size, durability, safety and protection from weather. The approval of the postmaster of the office which serves the route must be secured."

HIGHWAY ROBBER'S GRIEF DISPLAYED IN COURT.

Frank McMahon of Binghamton, Snatched Charles Stark's Watch.

Frank McMahon, giving his home as Oak street, Binghamton, came to Towanda Tuesday, and almost as quickly came to grief at the hands of the police. He is now in jail waiting the action of the grand jury on a charge of robbery from the person preferred by Charles Stark.

Frank is a husky specimen. He gave his age as 28 years, and he weighs close to 200 pounds, but his heart is not as stout as his body for he cried and blubbered like an overgrown baby when the hearing was in progress. A few minutes after 1 o'clock Stark stood in front of his home, the old Eagle hotel building on Court street, when McMahon came up from the track and passed upstairs into Stark's house. Here he was refused something to eat.

As he came down stairs he reached under Stark's arm, snatched his watch from his pocket and ran down River street. He would have made good his escape had not some small boys seen him dive into the subcellar of C. E. McCracken's store on Bridge street. Here Constable Hollon found him in a dark corner. As the officer placed the handcuffs on his prisoner McMahon dropped the watch and fob into the corner, where the officer picked it up. A locket belonging on the fob was found in his pocket.

McMahon proved abusive and sullen by turns and gave Hollon considerable trouble. At the hearing he stated he was subject to nervous spells, and stated he had been in the hospital "on the hill" at Binghamton for seven months; later he laid his misfortunes to drink. He gave his reason for coming to Towanda the desire to get work on the railroad bridge. Justice Orcutt held him without bail on the charge of robbery from the person.

Bullock Reunion.

The annual reunion of the descendants of Samuel and Jerusha Allen Bullock was held at Alparon Park on Thursday, June 28, 1906.

A large number were present, many coming from a distance to greet kindred and friends. After the picnic dinner, the time was spent in a business meeting and speeches were called for and responded to by a goodly number. Recitations were given by Misses Genevieve Hagerman, Ruth Bullock and Master Wilbur Wolcott. A very interesting letter from Dr. J. O. Bullock of Maryland, was read. The guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bullock of Powell, Mich., who brought records proving their right to both kinship and clanship. They came to us as strangers but pleasant words and genial manners will always win a welcome. Uncle Alvah Cornell and his good wife and Aunt Martha Bullock were the oldest of the "young people" present. May they be with us at many more such meetings as there is nothing which can add more to such meetings than the presence of dignified age.

May all who were present in 1906 answer to the call in 1907.

C. E. BULLOCK, Secretary
President.

WHIPS OF FLAME.

Picturesque and Puzzling Fire Dance of the Indians.

Mysterious are many of the ways of the red man. Dr. Matthews of Washington gave an interesting account of a fire dance which he was fortunate enough to witness in the far west. The spectators were seated about a large open space, in the center of which burned a ruddy fire.

Suddenly sounded a loud blowing of buffalo horns, mingled with a strange cry like the call of a sand hill crane. Nearer and nearer it came, and then there bounded into the circle ten men, naked to the waist and bearing long bundles of shredded cedar bark.

Round and round the fire danced the little procession, chanting and waving the flexible fagots. After some time the leader abruptly stopped and lighted his fagot of bark. The others followed his example.

Now began a wild race. At first the Indians kept close, spitting upon each other's back a substance supposed to have medicinal virtue. Soon they ran without concert, the long, brilliant streamers of flame flaring behind them. As they sped over the ground round the circle they applied the fiery brands to the bodies of themselves and comrades. Not a man turned as the vigorous, burning blows descended on his naked back. Sometimes they would seize the brand in their hands and rub it over their flesh as if it were a sponge and they were giving themselves a bath of flames. On they danced and whipped and rubbed until all seemed a dazzling ring of fire to the onlookers.

And were there sore and blistered backs the next day under the carelessly worn blankets? Apparently not, for Dr. Matthews saw and talked with the actors directly after the dance, and they seemed to experience no discomfort.

His explanation of the secret does not include the mysterious compound which the Indians spat upon each other. That, he thinks, was probably of no value. But cedar bark ignites at a low temperature, and the white earth with which the men were thickly coated was an excellent nonconductor.—Youth's Companion.

The East Side.

"A city's slums," said a globe trotter, "are always in its eastern quarter. I wonder why? Take New York. Its east side is its slum side. So it is with London. The east end is the slum end. Of Philadelphia, Chicago, Canton and Madrid the same thing holds good, as I know from personal experience. The only possible ground I can give for a city's slums being invariably in its eastern quarter is that this quarter is the one that is exposed to the harsh and unpleasant rigors of the east wind."

IRELAND'S RUINED CASTLES.

The Green Isle Is Rich In These Ancient Landmarks.

Ireland is rich in castles and ruins. One of the most ancient of these is the Grianan of Aileach, a ruin that stands on the heights above the Swilly and which was centuries ago the stronghold of the northern princes.

Around this fort many battles were fought. Hosts swarmed over the adjacent hills or fled down the river, and in those deadly engagements scenes were enacted that often cast a gloom over the whole country and wrecked the social life of Erin.

As England gained power she strove again and again to exert her influence over the sister isle, but warriors like Strongbow spurned a "foreign" supremacy and when the battle went against them found a safe retreat in the bogs, the valleys and the hills of that lonely country, only to sally forth to avenge themselves anew upon their enemies.

The rock of Cashel, Dunluce castle and many other spots were the centers of these fearful combats.

The picturesque ruins of Sligo abbey, built by Maurice Fitzgerald in A. D. 1253, and the more imposing proportions of Donegal castle are silent witnesses of a progress that proceeded steadily in spite of these disturbances. —Pearson's Weekly.

If City Noises Jar You.

Get some spermaceti, roll a wad large enough to fill the ear orifices, put it in a piece of fine cotton cloth tied with thread and insert into ears on retiring, pressing it quite firmly therein so that the ball of spermaceti will closely fill up all the air space in the ears. You will find it quite effective for barring noises, and hence inducing "nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep," to get in its good work. This ear plug is harmless and cheap. It helped me out greatly years ago amid the city's din, my sense of hearing being intensely keen and temperament neurotic. It is worth a trial, and I have no patent on it.—New York Herald.

His Character.

A cook has been going round a station in the south of India with the following "character" and is somewhat surprised he is not engaged: "Abdul has been my cook for three months. It seems much longer. He leaves on account of ill health—my ill health."

It's sound sense that we tell you.
Your work costs less dollars and is best every time you use the L. & M. Paint.
You do more painting with one gallon of L. & M. than with two gallons of other paints and the L. & M. Zinc hardens the L. & M. White Lead and makes the L. & M. Paint wear like iron.
4 gallons L. & M. mixed with 3 gallons Linseed Oil will paint a moderate sized house.
Actual cost of L. & M. about $1.20 per gallon.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Pattern For Lady's Pajamas Designed by Martha Dean—No. 6438

Not only men, but women, are finding pajamas a very excellent form of sleeping garment. They are much warmer than nightgowns and answer every requirement of this article of the wardrobe. The model sketched is one designed especially for home construction and is very simply made. It is developed in a striped madras with plain facings, but nainsook or outing flannel is quite as suitable. The upper part of the pajamas is cut in the broad mandarin style, and the sleeve is loose at the bottom, also reminding one of that eastern garb. The underarm seams are left open a short distance up. The freedom of the sleeve at the bottom is very practical, as it can be rolled up easily for bathing. The medium size requires six and a quarter yards of thirty-six inch material. No. 6438, three sizes, 34, 38 and 42 inches bust measure.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING

Pattern For Child's Gabrielle Dress Designed by Martha Dean—No. 4786.

In the gowning of the little maid the quaint and picturesque are everywhere prominent, and when the practical is also added the demands of fashion are satisfied. In the small Gabrielle dress shown we have a model very much like those worn by our mothers when they were little girls. Of course the lines conform to the present day styles, but it is a Gabrielle dress all the same. The body part consists of gores which give it excellent shaping. It may be made with or without the circular bertha and flounce, or it may be cut away at the bertha to form a pretty guimpe dress. It may be developed as elaborately or as simply as desired, the seams being inset with lace for a dressy costume, while the lace might adorn the ruffles. For a simple little home dress a checked gingham or challis might serve. Three and a half yards of thirty-six inch material are needed for the medium size. No. 4786, sizes, 3 to 9 years.

FOUR AT ONE SHOT.

Sayre Men Who Touched Off Strange Fireworks to Their Sorrow.

A peculiar looking object, with a fuse attached exploded the Fourth in West Sayre and immediately afterwards John Holcomb, Percy Myers, Rube Cornish and Date Edmonds started for the office of Dr. Rees for treatment to injuries. The peculiar looking thing was found by one of the four when he was near Oak Grove park. It did not look like a fire cracker, it did not look like anything the four had ever seen or heard about. But there was a fuse projecting from it, so they applied a match to that fuse.

The fire sputtered for a short time and then the peculiar thing became quiet. The four bent over it, made a hasty examination and then another match was applied to the short fuse. There was instantly a violent explosion. The peculiar thing had evidently contained a high explosive. A hole was torn through the right sleeve of Hoicomb's coat and some flesh was torn from his arm. The end of one of Myers's fingers was blown off; Cornish who was the worst injured, had his face and neck badly burned and Edmonds received a burn on one of his legs. The four persons had a lucky escape from more severe injuries for the "peculiar thing" exploded with great violence.—Evening News.

THE LATEST RUMOR.

Binghamton Thinks Pennsy Railroad Has Bought the N. Y., P. & S. W.

The Binghamton Press is responsible for a story that the Pennsylvania Railroad company has purchased the interests of the New York, Pennsylvania & South Western railroad and will build the line from Williamsport to the Parlor city, connecting with the Delaware & Hudson and making a through line to Boston.

The air of mystery which has surrounded the purchase of land at Binghamton by the representatives of a railway syndicate is being gradually dissolved, and it is said on the best authority that this week those interested in the purchase will be ready to declare their intentions regarding the improvement.

Carved His Own Fortune.

Thirty-five years ago a Bridgewater boy, Oscar Stephens, asked his father, Jerry Stephens, a farmer, living near Munger Tannery, for money, and didn't get it. The next morning Oscar was missing. He went West and made a fortune in Montana. His death occurred June 25, 1906, aged 57 years. He was the owner of 27 ranches, one of them containing 5,000 acres, and "cattle on a thousand hills," besides mines, bank stock, etc., being a millionaire. He sent for two of his brothers and they have done well in the West. One brother, Ethen S., lives in Binghamton, and two sisters in the West. He was a cousin of Clark Stevens, of Montrose.—Montrose Democrat.

Proper Public Spirit.

The spirit of public improvement has taken such deep root in Hazelton that two merchants, William Deisroth and S. G. Seager, have offered to pave an entire block along their properties at a cost of $1,500, provided council permit them to use vitrified brick instead of macadam, which was selected for the work on some of the other thoroughfares. There is a golden opportunity for similar generosity in Towanda.

No Retreat This Year.

The Episcopal clergy of the Central Pennsylvania diocese will hold no retreat this year. The buildings at Bethlehem are undergoing repairs and Bishop Talbot announces it impracticable to hold the retreat.

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the rescue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! This was because Ayer's Hair Vigor is a regular hair medicine. STATE ENDEAVORERS WILL MEET AT ALTOONA.

More Than Three Thousand Delegates Will Attend State Convention.

Altoona expects to have within its gates more than 3,000 delegates to the State convention of the Christian Endeavor Union, July 17, 18 and 19. Following the custom of the society, there will be no free entertainment, but a uniform rate for meals and lodging has been obtained.

Arrangements have been made to hold main sessions of the convention in the Second Presbyterian and Eighth avenue Methodist Episcopal churches. These churches are located within four blocks of the railroad depot and are within 150 feet of each other. The combined seating capacity of the two churches is about 3,000.

Other churches located in the immediate vicinity will be used for overflow and extra meetings.

For the evening meetings duplicate programs will be provided by the state officers, so that all may have the same privileges. As far as possible all overflow and extra meetings will be similar and as attractive as the main meeting places.

In order to provide for the musical part of the convention, the organization of a large chorus was commenced more than a year ago. Frequent rehearsals have been held, and so successful has been this part of the work that while originally planned to number 500 voicees, more than 700 are now enrolled.

The chorus has been divided into four divisions, so as to be available for service at any extra meetings found necessary in addition to those provided for on the program. The chorus has been assisted to a very great extent by a large orchestra and it is probable that each of the four divisions will have the assistance of a separate orchestra for all meetings.

Among those who will be on the program are found the names of Rev. J. T. McCory, D. D., S. S. Gordon, Rev. Isaac J. Lansing, Bishop Mills, Rev. W. A. Stanton, D. D., Hon. John Weaver, mayor of Philadelphia, and many others.

The wedding was performed at 7:30, the bride and groom being attended by Miss Etta Larson, the bride's sister, and Fred Johnson, the bride's cousin. Miss Mildred Larson was flower girl. Miss Dora Chase played the Mendelssohn wedding march. The house was elaborately decorated with roses, ferns, evergreens and marguerites. The bride's gown was of white silk crepe, trimmed with lace and Irish crochet, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses.

After a wedding journey to Buffalo, Rochester and points in Eastern Canada, they will be at home at East Smithfield.

Enlarging Coxton Yards.

Through the orders of President Thomas of the Lehigh Valley the company's yards at Coxton are being enlarged and when completed will be one of the largest in the country. When the big extension was made last year it was thought that no addition would be needed, but during the past few months it has been found inadequate to meet the wants of the railroaders and the above addition was ordered. Superintendent McGuire has already commenced the work.

Would Not Give Up.

William Bowman, living at Ralston, died July 1, of pneumonia. He had been ill about a week, but had persistently refused to go to bed. He sat on the porch all day Sunday until the afternoon when, feeling worse, he went out into the yard and lay down on the grass, where he died. He was 40 years of age, and leaves a wife and two children.

KILLED IN WATKINS GLEN.

Fourth of July Visitor Fell 60 Feet to Instant Death.

The first fatality to occur in Watkins Glen in many years was that of Fourth of July afternoon, when Lewellyn Smith, aged 24 years of Bennettsburg Falls, fell from the rocks above Rainbow Falls to the Emerald pool, 60 feet below, and sustained injuries which caused his immediate death. The young man had driven to Watkins from Bennettsburg, a distance of five miles, with a friend named Daniel Woodford, of his own age.

The two young men were enjoying the beauties of the Glen when the shower came up at 6 o'clock, which thoroughly drenched nearly 3,000 people who were at the resort. The rocks were rendered very slippery and when he started to cross one of the rather dangerous places his footing gave way and he was precipitated to the bottom of the gorge without a moment's notice.

He fell in a deep pool and his body was carried over the falls. When picked up 15 minutes later it was found that his neck had been broken and that life was extinct.

Morrison—Meehan.

June 27, at 9:30 o'clock in St. Francis church at Overton, Miss Mayme Meehan was married to James R. Morrison of Waverly, by Rev. G. J. Dixon, rector of the church, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Catherine Meehan, and Martin Morrison was best man. The ushers were J. J. and M. C. Sullivan of New Albany, J. L. Rizen of Rochester, and J. P. Meehan, brother of the bride. The bride wore a handsome gown of white silk and lace, a veil and carried white roses. The gown of the bridesmaid was of white persian lawn; she wore a picture hat and carried pink roses. After the mass, which was sung by the Dushore choir, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Meeman of New Albany, a fine wedding breakfast being served. The bride's table was laid for eight. The decorations were roses and ferns. The bride received many handsome and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison left on the afternoon train for a brief wedding journey and will be at home to their frieds after July 5, at Waverly.

Frenzied Finance.

A clever trick is that by which a Wilkes-Barre man alleges that he was swindled out of $160. John Kotroski went to his friend, Joe Kawleski and asked to borrow $160, giving his bank book as security. Joe placed the bank book in his trunk at home, from which it disappeared. After learning that Kotroski had taken the book to the bank and secured money on the same, he caused his arrest, on the charge of larceny. Kotroski's defense was that he had not stolen the bank book but that Joe had loaned him the money without any security. The evidence was aginst John and he was committed to jail, in default of $500 bail, for his appearance at court for trial.

Varguson—Kisner.

On Tuesday morning, July 3, at the home of the bride's parents at Laddsburg, by Rev. S. D. Fisk, Walter J. Varguson of New Albany, and Miss Alice M. Kisner were quietly married. DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not heat or inflame the blood, but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards—excuses no crimes—breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. We challenge a trial and are confident of the result. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a Bottle. Bear in mind the name and address: Dr. David KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

RAILROAD FATALITY ON THE LEHIGH VALLEY.

Dead Body Found Near the Tracks in the Early Morning.

A man whose identity has not been established was killed early on Wednesday morning of last week on the Lehigh Valley railroad, near Meshoppen. His dead body was found along the tracks after daybreak. Apparently he was between 30 and 35 years of age, had auburn hair, was clean shaven and had light blue eyes. He was about five feet nine inches tall and weighed about 150 pounds. He wore a pink and white striped shirt, a dark gray cap, dark suit somewhat worn and had in one pocket a linen handkerchief with the initials "D. M." worked in red silk in one corner. In has pocket was a pay envelope bearing the number 4482 and showing that he had received $24.55.

The man registered in one of the Meshoppen hotels under the name Rose, but it is thought his real name is McGovern. The Meshoppen authorities believe that a brother of the man lives in this vicinity and have communicated with Chief Loftus, asking his help to locate him.—Pittston Gazette.

SAYRE BOROUGH TO BUILD TRUNK SEWER SYSTEM.

Town Council Has Authorized $25,000 of Bonds to Start With.

The sewer question which has agitated the residents of Sayre for the past year, during which time the matter has been in the hands of a committee from the borough council, was quickly disposed of at the council meeting held Monday night of last week, when the ordinance was introduced and passed providing for the construction of a trunk line sewer on certain streets in Sayre, and providing for a bond issue of $25,000 with which to begin the work. Five thousand dollars of this amount, however, will be used to liquidate the borough's outstanding indebtedness, so that to be exact only $20,000 will be used for sewer purposes.

The council voted unanimously to adopt the ordinance which was presented immediately after the sewer committee had made an exhaustive report through Chairman Heverly. The main pipes will be 24 inches in diameter.—Valley Record.

Copperhead Harvest.

Foreman Rogers and his gang of section men have been harvesting the annual crop of hay and weeds along the line of the Lehigh Valley railroad during the past week, and incidentally harvesting the annual crop of copperheads also. In one day the men killed eleven of those dangerous snakes one of which caught one of the workmen in his rubber boot at the ankle, leaving a supply of poison on the rubber sufficient to knock out a half dozen men. Luckily the fangs of his snakeship did not get through the boot into the man's flesh and no harm was done. The men seem to enjoy the annual pastime of harvesting of the Lehigh's crop of northern Pennsylvania's most dangerous and deadly reptiles and they can surely furnish some fancy "yarns" of snakes killed and narrow escapes.—Wyalusing Rocket.

Hanging Too Good for Him.

Some brute entered the stable of Ben Sindlinger in Blossburg, one night last week and bored a hole through the hind hoof of his horse, put a rope through the hole and drew the horse's leg up and tied it to the halter. This was, no doubt done with the expectation that the horse would break its neck. The malicious fiend, capable of such an inhuman deed, should be run down and put behind the bars where he belongs. The case, if called to the attention of the officers of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, would be vigorously prosecuted.—Advertiser.

Her husband, one of the veteran passenger conductors on the Lehigh Valley railroad, has also been a visitor in this city and accompanied her home. They took along their granddaughter, Miss Vivian Blank, who will spend several months in Athens."

Post was employed as a bridge worker and of late has annoyed a well known Athens lady by his persistent attempts to propose marriage to her by letter. He promised to make the affair of international importance when he could reach a Russian consul.
